1 Introduction

“ Following the decision of the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) at its Plenary Meeting of 19-21 February 2020 to include Mauritius on its list of jurisdictions under increased monitoring, and the listing of the country on the EU List of High Risk Third Countries issued by the European Commission on 7 May 2020, Parliament passed the Anti-Money Laundering and Combatting the Financing of Terrorism (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2020 (Act No. 5 of 2020) on 7 July 2020, to ensure “closer compliance with the recommended international best practices of the Financial Action Task Force.”¹

Act No.5 of 2020 was published in the Government Gazette on 09th July 2020. The legislative reforms are intended to strengthen the country’s legal and regulatory framework concerning the fight against money laundering and financing of terrorism. In this document, we address the main legislative amendments.

2 Banking Act 2004 (the “BA”)

Customer due diligence information – Section 64B

The fine which may be imposed by the Bank of Mauritius for non-compliance by financial institutions or holders of licence with money laundering or terrorism financing guidelines, directives or instructions issued by the Bank of Mauritius has been increased from one million rupees to an amount not exceeding ten million rupees.

Examination of financial institutions or holders of licence – Section 64C

The amendments to this section are two-fold. Firstly, the BA has been amended to address the frequency and intensity of the examinations of the operations and affairs of financial institutions or holders of licence carried out by the Bank of Mauritius which are now determined by several factors, namely (a) the money laundering or terrorism financing risks and the policies, internal controls and procedures associated with the financial institution or holder of a licence or its group, as identified by the Bank of Mauritius’ assessment of the institution’s or group’s risk profiles (b) the money laundering or terrorism financing risks present in Mauritius; and (c) the characteristics of the financial institution or holder of a licence or its group, in particular the diversity and number of financial institutions or holder of a licence and the degree of discretion allowed to them under the risk-based approach implemented by the Bank of Mauritius.

Secondly, the Bank of Mauritius will now review periodically the assessment of money laundering or terrorism financing risk profile and risks of non-compliance of a financial institution, licence holder or group upon the occurrence of major events or developments in the management and operations of the financial institution or holder of licence.

16 Conclusion

The amendments to the Mauritius AMLCFT legislative framework aims at consolidating and strengthening the country's defence against financial crime, money laundering and the financing of terrorism. Responsibilities and powers are dispensed across a wider range of public authorities and supervisory bodies with clearly targeted financial institutions, businesses and professionals shown from the latest National Risk Assessment Report to have a substantial exposure to AMLCFT risks. With the focus on risk-based supervision, it would be expected that guidance from supervisors will not attract a literal prescriptive application and will give effect to the risk management methodology adopted. The challenge of Mauritius in re-establishing its standing as a financial centre of repute rests on a demonstration of the capacity and competence of the public supervisors to lead the fight against financial crimes not in superficial appearance but in result-oriented action of substance.
