Furthermore, the Bank of Mauritius is now the macroprudential authority of Mauritius.

The central bank has been granted additional powers to open accounts for, accept deposits from and pay interests on such deposits to licensees under the National Payment Systems Act.

Sustainable bonds

In the line with the recent guidelines on sustainable bonds, the central bank has been empowered to issue guidelines, directives, rules or instructions regarding the framework for the issue of sustainable bonds, including blue and green bonds in Mauritius.

Digital currency

Under the Finance Act 2020, the Act was amended to allow the Bank of Mauritius to issue digital currency, the amendments brought by the Finance Act 2021 go a step further with additional measures.

The central bank is now empowered to make rules to provide for the framework under which digital currency may be issued by the central bank, held and used by the public. The central bank is further authorised to open accounts and accept deposits of digital currencies issued.

Making, altering or using counterfeited digital currencies have been added as a criminal offence under the Act with a fine not exceeding one million rupees and to penal servitude.

The aim of the regulatory sandbox is to provide for a controlled testing environment which allows an Applicant, authorised by the central bank, to conduct experiments of the proposed services under the supervision of the central bank for a period of time which can be renewed. Authorisations under the regulatory sandbox will be subject to terms and conditions to be determined by the BOM to contain the consequences of failure and to maintain the overall safety and soundness of the Mauritian financial system. As part of its supervisory powers of the sandbox licensees, the central bank is authorised to examine the operations and affairs of the holders of regulatory sandbox authorisation.

Upon the BOM being satisfied with the successful experimentation period, the Applicant will be authorised to submit an application to the central bank for the relevant activity licence under the Act or the National Payment Systems Act 2018.

The requirements and eligibility criteria of the authorisation under the regulatory sandbox remain to be determined under guidelines or directives of the central bank.

The authorization may be subject to a specified time period whereby at the expiry, the Commission may revoke or renew the authorisation or issue to the holder, a licence under the Act or any other relevant Act where it is satisfied that conditions for holding such licence are satisfied.

The Commission may cause an inspection of the operations and affairs of a holder of such authorization to be conducted in order to assess compliance with the terms and conditions. Any person who is in breach shall, on conviction, be liable to a fine not exceeding one million rupees and to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 5 years.

08 | Information and Communication Technologies Act

The main amendments brought to the Act relate to (i) the prohibition on the importation, possession and use of devices in the GMPCS system, (ii) the creation of new offences associated with the use of a telecommunication equipment or an information and communication service, and (iii) the issuance or renewal of a licence conditional to the payment of the licence fee.

According to information published by the International Telecommunication Union, a GMPCS (Global Mobile Personal Communication by Satellite) is a personal communication system providing transnational, regional or global coverage from a constellation of satellites accessible with small and easily transportable terminals. Whether the GMPCS satellite systems are geostationary or non-geostationary, fixed or mobile, broadband or narrowband, global or regional, they are capable of providing telecommunication services directly to end users. GMPCS services include two-way voice, fax, messaging, data and even broadband multimedia.

The new section 45B prohibits a person from using, possessing or importing or causing to import a phone, a router or any other device that may be connected to a GMPCS system, unless that person has obtained the authorisation of the telecoms regulator to use, possess, import or cause to import such phone, a router or any other device. With coming into operation of the amendment, a person must apply for the appropriate licence from the telecom's operator.

The amendment also expands on how the transmission of a message using a telecommunication or an information and communication services constitutes a criminal offence. In addition, a person who uses a telecommunication equipment, an information and communication service, a telecommunication service or information and communication technologies to impersonate, or by other means impersonates any other person which is likely to cause or causes harm to the person who has been impersonated, commits a criminal offence. The legislator sets out a list of factors which the Court may consider determining whether harm was caused or was likely to be caused. For example, the Court may consider the extremity (may be, the nature) of the language used, the context in which the message appeared or whether the message would cause harm or would likely to cause harm to an ordinary reasonable person in the position of the alleged victim.

Finally, the Minister responsible for the subject of telecoms is given the power to make regulations for the registration of SIM cards. It is worth mentioning that before a SIM card is used, such card is registered with the operator and information. This information is confidential and can only be disclosed in the context of a criminal investigation upon an Order of the Judge. It remains to be seen what sort of regulations will be made concerning SIM cards.

09 | Insurance Act

Introduction of the National Insurance Claims Database

One of the noteworthy additions which has been enacted is the introduction of a National Insurance Claims Database concerning motor insurance business. This Database will be kept by the Commission and will contain information pertaining to insurance business on insurers, policy holders, beneficiaries or third-party claimants.

The information collected will be kept confidential by the Commission and will only be disclosable for the processing of insurance claims, the administration or the settlement of claims.

Further obligations with regards to insurance agents

A further change brought about to the Insurance Act is the obligation under section 71(1A) for insurers to now ensure that their insurance agents are in good standing in terms of fees and reporting obligations. Moreover, insurance agents who are natural persons or small private companies now also have to submit financial summaries within 3 months of expiry of each balance sheet date. The format of these financial summaries has been included as the new Fifth Schedule to the Insurance Act.

A new section 122A has been included in the Insurance Act, which empowers the Commission to exempt any classes of persons from section 72 of the Insurance Act which include the obligation to file financial statements and returns by insurance managers, insurance agents and insurance brokers.

10 | Local Government Act

Interestingly, the Local Government Act now exempt businesses from paying trade fees in the first 2 financial years after their registration, and the exemption availed by businesses whose annual trade fees do not exceed 5,000 rupees, has been extended from 6 to 11 years. Furthermore, holders of a certificate, licence or permit issued by the Tourism Authority and a Global Business Licence issued by the Financial Commission and not having physical office in Mauritius, are exempted from paying the trade fees.

11 | Prevention of Corruption Act

The Prevention of Corruption Act is amended to extend the validity period of an attachment order from 60 days to 180 days. It is recalled that an attachment order is granted by the Judge in Chambers upon an application made by the Independent Commission Against Corruption (“ICAC”) has reasonable ground to suspect that a person has committed an offence under this Act or the Financial Intelligence and Anti-Money Laundering Act. Prior to the amendment, the ICAC had to renew the validity period of the attachment before the expiry of 60 days from the date the attachment order is made. With the extension of the validity period, there is a less pressure on the ICAC to rush to make an application for the renewal of the order.

With the amendments brought by the Finance (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2021, the ICAC is given to power to realise the assets attached or seized. However, the ICAC may do so only with the consent of the owner of the asset and on terms and conditions agreed between the owner and the ICAC. The amount received following the realisation of the asset and deduction of any costs incurred in the realising of the assets must be credited into a separate bank account opened in the name of the ICAC for the purpose of assets realised and thereafter dealt with in accordance with any Court order or enactment.

12 | Prevention of Terrorism Act (“POTA”)

To further combat terrorism financing, the Commissioner of Police is vested with the power to make an application for the monitoring of an account held at a financial institution where the account is the subject of a terrorist investigation and the person specified in the application appears to hold the property. However, the account information must be of substantial value to the investigation and it is in the public interest that the account information is provided. The Order which is granted by the Judge takes the form of an Account Monitoring Order. A financial institution which is served with an Account Monitoring Order must provide the account information that is specified in the Order. An Account Monitoring Order which is initially valid for a period of 90 days from the date the Order is made may be extended for an additional period not exceeding 180 days.

13 | United Nations (Financial Prohibitions, Arms Embargo and Travel Ban) Sanctions Act 2019

The UN Sanctions Act has been amended to provide for the definition of the term ‘investigatory authority’ to have the same meaning as in the Financial Intelligence and Anti-Money Laundering Act 2002. Prior to this amendment, the term was used several times in the UN Sanctions Act, however, no definition was provided for same.

The National Sanctions Committee can now act on its own initiative or upon the request by a person to determine the involvement of a party in terrorism and direct the Secretary for Home Affairs to declare that party as a designated party.

Another significant change to the UN Sanctions Act is the express inclusion that where a person is required to make a report and submit information in respect of listed or designated parties, the report must be made notwithstanding any confidentiality provision in any enactment.

Lastly, the Secretary for Home Affairs is now required to give public notice of any freezing order granted under the UN Sanctions Act by electronic means and in a daily newspaper. Previously, the requirement was that of publishing the notice in two newspapers.
